Marta Rendon, M.D. Boca's Pioneering Dermatologist

Dr. Marta Rendon in her office at the Dermatology and Aesthetic Center

Dr. Marta Rendon is one of the most popular women in Boca Raton, partly because of her charming manner and partly because she makes other women and men look wonderful! An internationally renowned dermatologist with a special interest in aesthetics, Dr. Rendon provides the latest, most patient-friendly and successful treatments designed to keep people looking their best.

"It's gratifying to be able to make my patients so happy," she says.

After completing her dermatology residency in Dallas, Dr. Rendon came to Cleveland Clinic Florida, where she saw many severe and complex skin problems and rose to become chairman of the department of dermatology. When she opened the Dermatology and Aesthetic Center in Boca Raton, however, Dr. Rendon added an aesthetic focus to her practice to meet the demand for cosmetic procedures. While she still treats hundreds of patients a month for diseases such as eczema, psoriasis and skin cancer, she provides hundreds more with cosmetic dermatology procedures. The majority of these patients are energetic, successful people who want to look as good as they feel.

"Middle age is the time most people reach the peak of their personal and career success. Unfortunately, it coincides with natural changes in appearance that may have been accelerated by sun exposure. For many people, what they see in the mirror no longer reflects how they feel inside. That's where I can help," says Dr. Rendon.

Ten years ago, Dr. Rendon was among the first dermatologists in the area to understand how rapidly the field of aesthetic dermatology was moving forward. She began delving into the procedures and techniques. Response was so tremendous that she has recently added 2,000 square feet to her already large office to accommodate the variety of cosmetic and reconstructive techniques she offers. These include laser skin resurfacing; Fraxel laser, photo rejuvenation; Botox; laser removal of unwanted hair, scars, tattoos, stretch marks and leg veins; application of permanent makeup; and microdermabrasion.

One distinguishing aspect of Dr. Rendon's practice is her dedication to research. With the help of research assistants, residents and practicing dermatologists who come to work with and learn from her, she is conducting multiple research projects at all times. Dr. Rendon serves on the advisory board of many pharmaceutical companies, including Johnson & Johnson, GlaxoSmithKline and Unilever, and companies that make over-the-counter skin care products and cosmetics, such as L'Oreal and Procter & Gamble. As a result, she is often able to provide state-of-the-art treatment for patients long before it is available to the general public. Eventually, her research helps ensure that the products we put on our skin are both safe and effective.

"These companies trust my expertise and experience. That's why patients can, too," she says. "It's my pleasure to use a variety of exciting innovations to help the women and men of Boca Raton maintain a youthful appearance that complements their outlook on life."

Dr. Rendon is past president and a founding member of the American Society of Cosmetic Dermatology and Aesthetic Surgery, and was Professor of the Year at the University of Miami, she serves as clinical associate professor. She currently holds the same title at Florida Atlantic University.

Dr. Rendon will begin the second year of Aesthetic Lecure Series at the Boca Raton Resort and Club in January 2008. She is also well known for her charitable work in the community.

The Dermatology and Aesthetic Center is located at 880 N.W. 13th Street, Suite 3C, www.drrendon.com. For an appointment, please call 561-750-0544.

taining Editor-in-Chief of Quest magazine and founder, with Jeffrey Hirsch, of the much visited, online New York Social Diary. Columbia discussed his book, Debbie: My Life, the biography of actress Debbie Reynolds and told us great tales of trips around the world, including a recent one to Abu Dhabi, where he stayed at the $3 billion Emirates Palace hotel. So big, he couldn't find his room or the lobby, on several occasions. Apart from that, he liked the place or should I say palace!

Next guest was Patrick McMullan, New York's premier event photographer, whose gorgeous "coffee table" book, (it's actually as heavy as a coffee table!), Glamour Girls, features 1,400 images of the world's most celebrated women. Ladd asked the laconic McMullan how much you need to spend to be glamorous, "Not that much," he replied, "You just need a bit of tinsel!" Designer Arnold Scaasi begged to differ, "Of course you must have big dark, glasses, long, long tanned legs and lots of attitude to be a real glamour girl," he says in a quote in Patrick's book!

My fellow breakfast guests were as interesting as the speakers. Hat designer Anne Moore is in Palm Beach from Bridgehampton to open a new store in Via Mizner in the heart of Palm Beach. She's enlisted the help of two close friends to promote the store—iconic fashion photographer Arthur Elgort and supermodel Stephanie Seymour! With talent like that behind her, the stores bound to be a success!

Next in the series is Cathie Black, speaking about her book, "Basic Black: The Essential Guide for Getting Ahead at Work (and in Life)" on Jan 11. Tickets for the series are $100 and include breakfast, complimentary valet parking and a copy of one of the featured books. Reservations are required of course. Sandra Rodriguez at 561-366-4301 will take yours!

No rest for Brazilian Court's PR guru, former Vogue staffer, Maureen O'Sullivan—she's co-organizing a major press conference for "Autism Speaks" featuring Bob and Suzanne Wright and Melania and Donald Trump at the Mar-A-Lago Club, Dec. 27.

The season's only half way through as you'll see from this gala preview edition. The first black tie event of 2008 is the "Shifting Sands" Gala for the opening of PBCC's Countess de Hoernle Humanities Building on Jan. 12. Next, is the 46th Annual Boca Raton Community Hospital Ball on Jan. 19. Creative types can dress up as a pirate at the Rotary's Pirates Buccaneer Bash or a cowboy at the George Snow Scholarship Fund's 15th Annual Caribbean Cowboy Ball!

And that is life in Boca...

Happy New year everyone!

The George Snow Scholarship Fund will host its 15th Annual Caribbean Cowboy Ball at 6:30 p.m. on January 26 at the City of Boca Raton's Red Reef Park. "This has become a festive occasion that offers entertainment, delicious cuisine, exciting auctions and lots fun all benefiting a very special cause. The Caribbean Cowboy Ball may attract a black tie and evening gown crowd, but their attire is very much a blend of casual western and island garb."

Last year's event attracted a sell-out crowd of 550 and raised more than $120,000 to become part of the $330,000 in college scholarships awarded during the fund's 2007 Annual Awards Reception at Florida Atlantic University. Roberta and Stanley Bogen held a reception at their Palm Beach home to honor the 2007 American Friends of the Hebrew University (AFHU) 5th Annual Scholarship Luncheon. Mariane Pearl, award-winning international journalist and wife of the late Wall Street Journal reporter Daniel Pearl, was special guest speaker. The luncheon was held the following afternoon at Mar-a-Lago where Pearl was the keynote speaker. Pearl openly shared with the audience her emotional experience with terrorism and the loss of her husband, Daniel. "I felt it was my responsibility and unique mission to share with the world my experiences because people must first understand terrorism in order to take a stand against it, said Pearl. "We must show them that despite their attempts to invoke fear and hatred, the human spirit cannot be damaged and our humanity cannot be defeated." American Friends of The Hebrew University is a national, not-for-profit organization, with local offices in Boca Raton and Palm Beach. For more information, call 561-750-8585 or visit www.afhu.org.

Broward Center for the Performing Arts starts the New Year with "The Drowsy Chaperone," winner of five Tony Awards in 2006 and the most successful stage musical ever to originate in Canada.

The show is a look at a fictional 1928 musical comedy with typical conventions including a wedding saboteur, a debonair groom, a vain chorus girl bride, a Latin lover, an English butler and two gangsters disguised as chefs.

Canadian actor Jonathan Crombie is the nostalgic Broadway-loving Man in the Chair. Georgia Engel ("Marty Tyler Moore Show," "Everybody Loves Raymond") reprises her Broadway role of Mrs. Tottendale and Andrea Chamberlain is starlet Janet Van De Graaf.

"Drowsy Chaperone" runs through Jan. 13 and tickets are $23-$67. Call (954) 462-0222.

Johnny Depp is getting great reviews in the movie "Sweeney Todd," but if you want to see the real deal, Stephen Sondheim's musical about "The Demon Barber of Fleet Street," opens Jan. 1 and runs through Jan. 6 at Carnival Center in Miami. David Hess stars as the throat-slicing barber and Judy Kaye is his pie-making accomplice, Mrs. Lovett. Keith Buterbaugh is the sinister Judge Turpin and Benjamin Eakeley is his flunky, the Beadle.

"The Drowsy Chaperone"

"Fourth Wall" a Play for Theater-Lovers, Bush-Haters

Playwright A.J. Gurney took to heart Shakespeare's assertion that "All the world's a stage and all the men and women merely players" when he wrote "The Fourth Wall" in 1992.

Gurney rewrote the play-within-a-play in 2003. The new version is onstage through Feb. 3 at the intimate Palm Beach Dramaworks, 322 Banyan Blvd., West Palm Beach.

George H.W. Bush was in the White House in 1992. His son, George W. Bush, was in the White House in 2003. A lot has changed in 11 years.

Bush Sr. led the United Nations-sanctioned Gulf War of 1990-1991. Bush aimed to curb the aggression of Iraq and its strong man Saddam Hussein. H.W. Bush stopped short of invading and occupying Iraq.

His son W. Bush invaded Iraq with a handful of allies in 2003 and forced Hussein out of power. U.S. forces continue to occupy the country.

"The Fourth Wall" is both a political play and a play of ideas, in which Gurney discusses the nature of reality versus the artificial world of theater. It is a play about disillusionment, but it is also bitterly funny.

Roger and Peggy (Peter Thomasson and Patti Gardner) are a long-married couple living in Buffalo, New York.

Julia is a family friend visiting from New York City, and she never lets anyone forget that she lives in the only place that really counts.

Professor Loesser, otherwise known as Floyd (Gregg Weiner), is an overbearing, intellectual professor of theater.

Floyd is called in to examine the mid-life crisis of Peggy, who has arranged the living room furniture as if it were a stage set, with everything facing a blank wall.

Of course the wall isn't really blank. We the audience are sitting behind it in full view of the actors, but like good professionals they pretend we aren't there.

In this case the fourth wall is eventually broken, but not before the four players engage in theatrical conventions including amorous intrigues, checkered family history, and even Cole Porter songs sung at a grand player piano.

Patti Gardner is a most appealing desperate housewife who has become obsessed with George W. Bush. It's a nutty role, but Gardner somehow makes her sincere.

The role of Roger is insincerity itself, and handsome, dapper Peter Thomasson is the very model philanderer, with Angie Radosh his eager co-conspirator.

In some ways Gregg Weiner's Professor Floyd is the funniest of all: smug and condescending yet ridiculous and pathetic.

All the shenanigans occur within the space of 90 minutes or so, sans intermission. Director J. Barry Lewis made the right decision to make it short but bittersweet. This is a play specifically for theater buffs and Bush-haters. Hmm, they seem to go hand-in-hand.

Tickets are $38 and $40, with group rates available. Call (561) 514-4042.

Robert Klein

"Dean of Stand Up Comics, Robert Klein, Entertains Jan. 4 and 5

Robert Klein, the "Dean of Stand Up Comics," returns to Boca Raton to share his wry observations about life at 8 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 5 at Florida Atlantic University Center Auditorium. Klein also entertains at 8 p.m. Jan. 4 at Eissey Campus Theatre in Palm Beach Gardens.

Klein started his career as a darling of college audiences. You could say he graduated and took over the college.

"It's weird being called a 'legend,' or the dean of comedians," Klein admits from his home in Westchester, New York. "I do love silliness, but I started as an admirer of Lenny Bruce. I'm not a prude, but the profanity in comedy today makes Lenny seem tame. There has been a general dumbing down of America. I don't think Lenny Bruce could make it today."

Klein will explore his silly side in National Lampoon's "Dirty Movie," to be released in 2008. He is more proud, however, of his 2006 work with Adam Sandler in "Reign Over Me" ("He was brilliant," Klein marvels) and actress-writer Jennifer Westfeldt in "Ira and Abby," in which he played the father of Ira Black.

"I've played a lot of fathers lately," he allows. "Ira and Abby was especially enjoyable because I got to work again with my dear friend Fred Willard. We started out together in Second City in 1965."

Klein, 65, has not only embraced his past, but capitalized on it. The boxed set "Robert Klein: The HBO Special 1975-2005" is now in video stores.

"HBO had a membership of 400 or 500,000 in 1975 when I did my first special live in front of a college audience," he reveals. "So many of the older routines have never been seen by today's audiences."

Klein is now gathering material for his ninth HBO special, due to air in late 2008 or early 2009. Who knows, Boca Raton could end up in the material.

"I always enjoy returning to Boca Raton," he says.

Tickets to Robert Klein are $35 and $45. Call (800) 564-9539 or 278-7677.

Warm Lemon Pudding Cakes with Marbled Berry Cream

Warning! These are addictive. Serve at your own risk! No one can eat just one of these individually baked cakes with a pudding-like center.

INGREDIENTS:

Pudding Cakes

3/4 cup plus 2 tablespoons sugar
6 tablespoons (3/4 stick) unsalted butter, softened
1 tablespoon grated lemon zest
3 large egg yolks
1/3 cup flour
1/3 cup fresh lemon juice
1 1/2 cups whole milk
3 large egg whites
2 tablespoons sugar

Garnish

confectioners' sugar

Marbled Berry Cream

1/2 cup thawed frozen raspberries in syrup
3/4 cup chilled whipping cream
2 tablespoons sugar

Directions:

For the cakes, beat 3/4 cup plus 2 tablespoons sugar, butter and zest in a medium mixing bowl until well blended. Beat in the egg yolks 1 at a time. Beat in the flour and then the lemon juice. Add the milk gradually, beating to form a thin batter; the mixture may appear curdled.

Beat the egg whites in a mixing bowl until soft peaks form. Add 2 tablespoons sugar and beat until stiff but not dry peaks form. Fold into the yolk mixture 1/3 at a time; the mixture will be thin. Spoon into 6 buttered 3/4-cup soufflé dishes or custard cups. Arrange the dishes in a large baking pan. Add enough hot water to the pan to come halfway up the dishes.

Bake at 350 degrees for 25 minutes or until the cakes are puffed and firm to the touch. Transfer the dishes to serving plates and let stand at room temperature for up to 8 hours. Garnish with confectioners' sugar.

For the berry cream, purée the undrained raspberries in a food processor or blender. Strain the purée and discard the seeds. Beat the cream and sugar in a medium bowl until soft peaks form. Drizzle the raspberry purée over the cream and swirl gently into the cream with a knife to form a marbled design. Serve immediately with the pudding cakes or store, covered, in the refrigerator for up to 4 hours.

JEWELRY RESOLUTIONS—

RESPECT AND CARE FOR THE JEWELS YOU LOVE—PART I

To maintain your jewelry's health and wealth between scheduled jeweler check-ups, knowledge is power.

Jewelry is made in a variety of precious metals and stones:

Each type of metal and stone possesses a different hardness and quality. For instance, you have heard that a diamond can scratch glass; that is because a diamond has a hardness of 10 and glass a hardness of 2. When correlating these hardnesses to the earthquake Richter scale, each increase and/or decrease of one hardness is equal to ten x's the same. This means that every stone whether set or unset in jewelry should be kept separate from one another (i.e. any stone of the same type-diamond to diamond and/or other varieties of stones). Use of a jewelry box specifically manufactured for the safe keeping of jewelry and/or simple plastic bags obtained from stationery store or local jeweler, will alleviate this problem.

Gold jewelry with/without stones needs special care:

Platinum, 14 karat and 18 karat gold, and silver all possess different hardnesses. Therefore, when storing, you should keep all of these separate so that the metal surfaces remain shiny and unblemished for a longer period of time. To avoid creating knots in thin chains, always be sure that the clasp is closed and then wind the chain around pencil to keep it from tangling. Any chain that is not flexible enough to use this method, needs to be kept flat without kinks. To do this, you can wind the chain in circular motion like a spring or a coil, but, remember, that the chain must be kept flat. This will avoid breakage, kinks or stretching of joints. If you have a chain or collar that do not lay flat, then it must be positioned so that no other item can rest on top of it to avoid changing shape and stretching of joint.

Precious stones - You should insure these.

"Hardness" indicates at what pressure the stone will break; "brittleness" indicates at what pressure the stone will chip and/or crack. Poros-

Emerald cut solitaire with emerald-cut side stones

ity means the stones are porous and the molecular composition of the stones are not organized which enables the stones to break very easily and disintegrate.

Such types of stones include opals, emeralds, and tanzanite which require special care. Because of their vulnerability, they should not be an item worn on a daily basis. As these stones possess a very low hardness, they will also scratch easily which will reduce look and beauty of the stone.

My advice is to insure these items, because if they do become damaged or break, they will fall out of their setting and be lost.

I'll be giving more advice on caring for your jewels in Part 2 on Jan. 13.

Snow Globes and German Guards

Some of the most beloved holiday decorations are the simplest including the coveted snow globes, snow domes, or as the German's call them, schneekugeln. Introduced in France as a successor to the glass paperweight, the snowglobe was featured at the 1889 International Exposition in Paris as a souvenir featuring a model of the newly built Eiffel Tower inside.

Shakin' Snow globes

Initially, snow globes consisted of a heavy lead glass dome that was placed over a ceramic tableau. Central European artisans who were blowing glass globes to protect religious relics and clockwork movements started to export their glassware to the growing snow globe industry. The globes were filled with water and sealed. Shaking the globe made the snow move within the globe from all directions as if demonstrating a windy blizzard. The 'snow' was created with bone chips, porcelain pieces or non soluble soap flakes. More recently, the 'snow' in a typical snow globe is produced from tiny pieces of white plastic and enhanced with distilled water and glycerin to make the water denser and 'snow' appear more realistic. In the 1940s, snow globes were produced as advertising or travel souvenirs and for religious Nativity remembrances.

In the Victorian era, the British called the collectible tableaus "snowstorms" as they gained popularity from 1890 to 1901. Despite their European beginnings, snow globes were mass-produced in the US thanks to Pittsburgh, PA native, Joseph Garajha. The first mass-production patent for snow globes featured Garajha's new base which allowed the globe to be screwed into it like a light bulb. Today, snow globes are traded and collected worldwide and this holiday favorite will bring you a White Christmas right in the palm of your hand.

German Nutcracker

In the 18th Century, German craftsmen introduced collectors to another holiday figurine, the Nutcracker. A form that relates to the history of military regalia, the Nutcracker is a guardian figure from Bavaria. The nutcracker's brightly colored regalia remind visitors of the home owner's authority.

Some nutcrackers are suited in the stately attire of kings while others represent occupations as diverse as fishermen to fix-it men. Figures such as doctors, conductors, and even mountain climbers have been immortalized as collectible nutcrackers. Nutcrackers can range in value from the store bought Schoen-hut version for about $125 to the collectors' type dating back to the 16th Century starting at an unbelievable $8,000. The desired and highly sought after King nutcrackers refer to the ceremonial monarchs of Rococo Bavaria, yet any type of nutcrackers will surely stir up memories of warm holiday seasons past.

Happy holidays!

Wine

By Monty and Sara Preiser

Sterling: An Old Favorite Re-emerges

One of the more spectacular places to visit in the Napa Valley is Sterling vineyards. Now owned by the huge and well run Diageo Corporation, Sterling's portfolio gets better every year, a welcome fact after a few years of mediocrity. For too long the brand name unfortunately conjured up visions of lower cost wines found mostly on the wine lists of average restaurants. That should no longer be the case. Sterling's value wines, if you will, which are what you saw so often, are now far better than average. But a visit to the winery allows the opportunity to taste a great many other bottles only available at that one spot, and worthy of your time.

The winery is primarily reachable by an airway tram that offers glorious views of the upper Valley, and is worth the ride whether you are drinking or not. As you disembark, you may choose a well designed self guided tour that will teach you about wine and Sterling, or go straight to the "building in the sky" that houses the gift shop, outside balconies to sip and relax, and various rooms each designed to meet the type of tasting program you have selected.

On the day we last visited, there were 13 Cellar Club wines to choose from, with bottle prices ranging from a $22 Cameros Chard to a $35 Petite Sirah. In between were varietals such as Pinot Gris, Viognier, Syrah, Gewur-ztraminer, Zinfandel, Muscat Canelli, and Malvasia Blanca. For $10, you can taste 4 wines, and individual tastes are $3.

You can try 3 single vineyard wines for $12, or $5 per wine. The bottles making up this portfolio are our particular favorites, especially the 2003 Diamond Mountain Ranch Cab ($65), with dense, ruby colors, and lots of power. Also try the 2002 Three Palms Merlot ($60), with its cherry and plum flavors on top of smooth tannins and a little chocolate, and the 2004 Rutherford Cab ($35), at $35 a good value.

Finally, you may opt for a tasting in the more private Reserve Room, where the cost was $25 for a flight of either Reserve Cabs, or high end Merlots.

Wines here retail for between $45 (Reserve Chardonnay) and $150 (1998 Reserve Cabernet Sauvignon), and in one of Napa's best bargains, you can taste any of these fine 9 wines for $10/ taste.

We leave you with a Napa insider tip: Try to arrange your visit here at the end of the day (check hours) so you can relax with some of these wines on the beautiful balcony along with a score or two of others looking to do the same thing. Nice camaraderie in an idyllic setting.

Cruises

By Michael Coleman

Majestic makeover ushers in new era

It was just a few short years ago when Majesty of the Seas carried the proud distinction of being the world's largest cruise ship. When Royal Caribbean unveiled the 74,000-ton modern marvel in 1992, not only did it signal a new era for the company, one could argue that cruising's overall popularity stemmed from its launch.

The global cruise industry is booming today and Royal Caribbean is one of its biggest players with 21 vessels plying the global waters, each more innovative and passenger-friendly than the next. So, what to do with one of its aging stars, a 15-year-old ship born before rock-climbing walls and skating rinks became fleet staples? Company officials headed back to the drawing board.

New Era Begins

What recently emerged was an ambitious, if not impressive, $36 million bow-to-stern makeover. Guest suites and staterooms have been overhauled, as have the casual dining areas, the main dining rooms, the ship's spa, fitness center, conference rooms, pool deck, theater and Casino Royale. In addition, the Viking Crown Lounge, Centrum shops' façades and other public areas have also been modernized. Look also for bow-to-stern Wi-Fi access, new flat-screen televisions, luxurious bedding and bathrooms outfitted with new hardware. Not to be outdone, kids have their own Adventure Ocean youth center which offers a host of supervised activities and teens will enjoy their own nightclub and lounge.

The food and beverage transformation on this 2,350-passenger vessel, however, may have been the most dramatic. A myriad of new dining options abound. The Windjammer Marketplace features a selection of Asian, Latin, Mediterranean and American fare in a relaxed and casual atmosphere. Also new is the Compass Deli, featuring a sandwich bar, daily soups, made-to-order salads, paninis, crepes and energy drinks.

The ship's entertainment scene has also been overhauled. "Signed, Sealed and Delivered," the line's latest theater production, brings to life the soul, rhythm and blues of Stevie Wonder, Ray Charles and Tina Turner, among other musical giants. Want to dance after the show? The line's signature Latin bar, Boleros, serves up more than just mojitos and caipirinhas.

Majesty of the Seas, anchored off Coco Cay

Sailing year-round to the Bahamas from Miami, each three-or four-night cruise features a visit to Coco Cay, Royal Caribbean's sun-drenched private island. Look for water sports activities and a complimentary BBQ to make the tendered visit ashore all the more enjoyable. Upon returning to the vessel, active passengers might want to climb the line's famous rock-climbing wall, added in a previous makeover.

Majesty of the Seas, has undergone a $36-million transformation
